IT NEEDS COMMON SENSE.

Some Suggestions as to How the Pres ent Stringency in the Money Market May be Relieved-Present Conditions Embarrassing to Enlarged Industrial and Commercial Opera-

Philadelphia Times: The strained conditions under which the country is now suffering are the logical result of our patchwork, and that is liable at any time when we have enlarged industrial and commercial operations, to become a severe restraint upon business progress. In no period in the history of the nation has money been so widely diffused in new industrial and business operations as during the last eighteen months, and the result is that money to-day in the most legitimate business channels readily commands 6 per cent, while pall loans, largely for stock or other speculative operations, often command as much as 30 per cent. These conditions are very hurtful to the business advancement of the country. and they should be promptly and thoroughly remedied. There should be no wild inflation or any financial system that would invite such a ruinous policy, but we are now nearly 80,000,000 of people with a sudden industrial and trade development unexampled in the history of the world.

This wrong to the business interests is partly the fault of our financial laws, but it is also largely the fault of our national banks. They do not seen to understand that they are upon tria perer the people of the country, and that they are vehemently assailed by a with public sentiment and public ques-tions that they possess in dealing with their millions behind the counter, they would not permit themselves to be as-sailed for withholding greatly needed currency from the nation. National banks could to-day increase the currency of the country by several hundreds of millions, and it is their duty to do it. True, it would be to their dis-advantage, but they are farnishing the political enemies of our axceptionally good banking system with arguments which can be used most effectively against them before the people.

Our national banks should meet the present emergency by the issue of the full volume of currency they are authorized to issue under the law. True, it has not been profitable in the past. and it might possibly diminish their profits for some period in the future, but they owe it to themselves and to the safety of our banking system, as well as to the public generally, to meet this emergency by furnishing the largest measure of relief within their power. Many of them have not a single bank note in circulation, and only the very small banks of villages, as a rule, have issued the full amount to which they are entitled. Let the banks soberly consider what they owe to the business community, and also what they owe to the safety of our excellent bank ing system that is certainly seriously threatened.

national government should nest of all authorize the banks to issue currency to the full face value of the government bonds they deposit as security, and there should be some measure devised, consistent, with absolute safety to the currency of the country. by which an extreme emergency could be met by an enlarged issue. In addition to this the money of the govern-ment, where now several hundreds of millions are locked up and absolutely withdrawn from business circles, should be always available to business With the national depositories furnishing ample security to the government, there is no reason why every dollar not needed in the treasury should not be deposited in the chosen banks for diffusion among the people. We have the foundation of a very

The market rallied some on buying by this privilege, but the mainisupport came as a result of the small receipts. December advanced to 67%c67%c and May to 11%c, a spread of 4%c between the two options. It became rumored about that the market had been sold to some extent, a condition which added to the desire to cover shortages. The early gain was all lost late in the session, when it was reported that within the next ten days boats carrying 1,000.000 bushels of wheat would clear from Duith for this port. Both options declined sharply toward the end, December closing %6%c lower at $76%fixe, and May %c under at 11%c.
